LOGLINE

TABITHA (20s-30s) is stuck between two worlds. When the Artistic Director of her theatre company tokenizes her for his Equity, Diversity and Inclusion initiative, she faces her reality of living in two skins as a Korean adoptee.

CAST

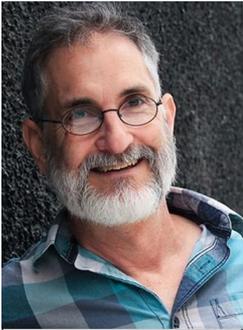

Michalyn Steiner-Killian (TABITHA) is a choreographer, performer and educator in ballet, jazz, and musical theatre. Recent choreography credits include Mamma Mia, The Music Man, and Seussical the Musical at Mainstage Theatre and The Pirates of Penzance, Some Enchanted Evening, and Return to the Forbidden Planet at Stageworks Northwest Theatre. Her last acting roles were Helen in The Trojan Women (2020) and Corie Bratter in Barefoot in the Park (2019) at Stageworks Northwest Theatre. Michalyn studied theatre arts at Portland State University and has been choreographing shows since 1999. After traveling extensively, Michalyn now resides in the small town she grew up in, just north of Portland, OR. She feels it is vital to make contributions to the arts in her hometown as it directly affects the culture and community where she raises her two children.

Annie Yim (WON YUNG) is a native Texan who can indeed ride a horse. Since moving to the Seattle area, Annie has worked with Seattle Children's Theatre, Seattle Shakespeare, Book-It Theatre, Taproot Theatre, Theatre 22, and Cafe Nordo. Film roles include Rammy Park's The Homecoming Queen. Most recently, she was seen in the US premiere of Kim's Convenience, which inspired the hit show on Netflix. She has done numerous voice over commercials, corporate videos, and video game characters. Selected NYC and regional work: NY Theatre Workshop (Coney Island Avenue), LaMAMA (Richard III), HERE Arts Center, and Colorado Shakespeare Festival. Annie earned her BFA from NYU's Tisch School of the Arts and her MFA from Columbia University.

Janeene Niemi (TRACY) has been active in theatre since high school and is excited to have recently accepted the position of Artistic Director at Stageworks Northwest, a dynamic community theatre in SW Washington. Favorite roles include Dotty in Noises Off, Wendi in Angry Housewives, Betty in The Great American Trailer Park Musical, Gloria in Return to the Forbidden Planet, and most recently the title role in Shirley Valentine. Favorite productions include co-directing Peter Pan the Musical, bringing Audrey II to life as a puppeteer in Little Shop of Horrors, and directing the classic Barefoot in the Park (with the added pleasure of the talented Michalyn Steiner-Killian in the role of Corie). She is anxious for theatres to begin the reopening process and is particularly looking forward to Stageworks resuming production of Clue on Stage, interrupted by the pandemic more than a year ago. She is honored to be a part of this important project, telling a much-needed AAPI story and helping local filmmakers bring it to life.

Paul Bright (BILL) is most widely recognized for his role as an unrepentant cult member in IFC's series Documentary Now *Batsh*t Valley* starring Owen Wilson and Michael Keaton. His film credits started with Blake Edward's Miki and Maude starring Dudley Moore in the 80s, and include TV series, films, infomercials and advertisements spanning forty years. He trained for theater in Los Angeles and New York and performed roles ranging from Don Quixote in Man of La Mancha to Hinesy in The Pajama Game. He founded the Gaslight Theater and served as the Artistic Director, producing 33 shows in the Austin Texas area. In Portland he performed numerous roles for The Pulp Stage directed by Jeff Kuenle, Sex We Can directed by Eleanor O'Brien, Portland Actor Ensemble's As You Like It directed by Sara Fay, Fuse Theatre Ensemble's productions of Popcorn Girl and The Temperamentals, Chapel Theatre Play Festival's Transmit Now directed by Steve Koeppen, and in 24 hour play festivals produced by Profile Theater and Haywire Theater. Over the past year he's performed online in a different play every week with the Masticators Theatre Troupe. This summer he will film the leading comedic role in the feature film Pocket Mouse Protector.

Julisa L. Wright (KRISTEN) is an actor and comedian who's early stage work began in her hometown of Longview, Wa. Ranging from pantomime, comedias, Shakespeare, and musicals, Julisa took her love of acting and performing to Los Angeles where she continued her study of comedy at iO West, Groundlings and Second City. She spent 10 years working both in front of and behind the camera for television, film and award shows. She currently resides back in her hometown where she shares her passion and knowledge gained in the entertainment industry with the theatre community in Southwest Washington while also owning and running a chocolate and bookshop, Storyboard Delights, in the historic downtown area of Longview.

Dylan Disch (JEFF) studied theater at Lower Columbia College before becoming a flight attendant. However, his passion for performance overcame sensible pursuits and now he leaps at any opportunity to express himself creatively. He recently portrayed Cookie in "Return to the Forbidden Planet" and he was Clifford in "Deathtrap" at Stageworks Northwest. He also played Dr. Jodi in "How to Survive a Zombie Apocalypse" and Seymour in "Little Shop of Horrors". He's so grateful for his opportunity to be a part of such an important story.

Michalyn Steiner-Killian (Producer) is a predominantly a choreographer in the Pacific NorthWest and is taking on the challenge as one of the lead producers for FOUND. She is thrilled to bring the Longview community together through this partially-autobiographical story that needs to be told, now. As a choreographer and dancer she has worked in Florida, California, Oregon and Washington, and skipped across waters as a performer on cruise ships and in the Bahamas. She is a proud Longview native, bringing her choreography back to her hometown in hope it influences young lives as positively as it influenced her own. She is proudly sitting on the Production Team at Stageworks Northwest.

Jeanette Li (Cinematographer) is based out of Portland, OR. They have a background in 35mm film photography and documentary (previously having directed a documentary on Chinese American communities living in the south.) They have spent the past 7 years working in various positions in camera department on short films, music videos, and narrative features (The Dark Divide, The Last Hot Lick). Jeanette first made the transition to cinematographer with a modern day web series adaption of The Secret Garden in 2015. That year Jeanette earned two nominations for Best Cinematography for their work on the web series adaptation and another short film at the Portland Indie Film Awards. Recently they were awarded a grant by the Regional Arts and Culture Council to complete photography on a surrealist trans Chinese American ghost story.

Their approach to storytelling is shaped by their experience growing up non-binary, queer, and Asian American in a small Southern town and is rooted in a desire to shift culture and build a collective memory around identities that are often left unexplored in mainstream media.

Vincent Hoai Pham (Producer) Vincent Hoai Pham is a Vietnamese-American media and film Producer born and raised in Portland. "Growing up AAPI in the NW, I learned you can make a lot of great friends but still feel a bit different because your parents didn't come from the same place as everyone else's. The idea of being in good company, but still feeling alone is an Asian-American & Bipoc story I'm honored to help Reena tell."

After graduating from Portland State Film School, Vincent jumped on as many projects as he could on the west coast from short films, feature length movies, commercials and TV Series. Vincent currently works as a Studio Producer at BGI, creating media content with UFC Athletes and US Olympic Wrestling.

On Discovery Channel true-crime show "Wonderland Murders" Vincent was responsible for contracting and handling vehicles as picture car coordinator, also ensuring they are historically accurate. Vincent has collected significant experience in acquiring shooting locations, forming agreements with cemeteries, hospitals, fighting gyms, retail, office spaces, and scouting for Ford/Lincoln scenic ads. More recently, Vincent has practice in planning logistics for producing short films while maintaining covid regulations.

Julisa Wright (Production Designer) has worked in the entertainment industry for 20 plus years. From stage to screen, Julisa's passion is visual communication and storytelling. She has travelled across the US, the UK, and Western Europe soaking in design elements, cultural histories, and meeting people with eclectic backgrounds. While living and working in LA for 11 years, Julisa worked not only behind the camera but in front of it as well. Working on small budget indie films, large studio t.v shows, and a handful of big award events such as the AMAS and the Oscars.

Whether creating social media content, production design and set design, merchandising products, or styling photoshoots, she is extremely sensitive to every detail within the viewers eyes and creates environments that depict a feeling and story.

Jon Chau (Composer/Sound Designer) began his journey in the world of cinematic music, providing music and sound design to a multitude of acclaimed television shows, films, and video games such as The Walking Dead, Black Mirror, 10 Cloverfield Lane, and God of War. Since then, his focus has grown to many other mediums such as record production, live visual experiences, and sample creation. Recently he's released a solo EP, opened a beat store, and collaborated with creators like Strangeloop Studios, 88 Rising, and Zedd. On an unending quest to evolve creatively, his unique experience and love for storytelling can always be heard.

Faroukh Virani (Editor) is a Los Angeles based editor who moves between narrative and documentary editing, as he finds one storytelling discipline informs the other in his work. Faroukh recently edited the feature documentary "Ottolenghi and the Cakes of Versailles," and has post-production credits on "WALKER" and "iZombie" for CW, and the Amazon series "HUNTERS." He has a background in Film Production at USC's School of Cinematic Arts (MFA) and NYU's Tisch School of the Arts (BFA).

Additional Post Production:

Jesse Glucksman (Colorist)

Lex Benedict and Long Lost Pictures (Video Effects)
